Directors & Officers Coverage for HOAs

What is Directors & Officers Coverage?

Directors and Officers (D&O) insurance includes protection for leaders in a company or group. It helps if they're accused of making bad decisions or treating people unfairly. This insurance covers their legal expenses and any money they might need to pay if they're found responsible. It's a shield that helps leaders feel safer while making important choices.

Our Products & Services

The Community Association Management Liability policy provides D&O coverage specifically tailored to support community associations such as homeowners associations, condominiums, and commercial associations.

Other coverages to consider:

- Crime/Fidelity
- Cyber Risk Liability
- Excess Liability

Benefits of D&O Coverage

Protects Board Members

D&O coverage keeps board members' assets safe if they are sued for their actions as part of the association.

Manages Risks

D&O coverage helps the association handle potential lawsuits or claims against board members, avoiding financial strain.

Preserves Association Finances

Without D&O coverage, the association's funds could be drained by legal expenses, impacting its ability to maintain and improve the property.

Attracts Qualified Board Members

Having D&O coverage makes the association more appealing to capable individuals who want protection while serving on the board.

Builds Confidence With Unit Owners

D&O coverage assures unit owners that the association is taking steps to protect their interests and make responsible decisions.
